CONVENTION TAKES RECESS UNTIL 4 P. M. WAR ON CREDENTIALS

BULLETINS.

CHICAGO, June 20.—The following statement, signed and issued by Colonel Roosevelt, was given out to the press at 11:50 a. m.:

The time has come when I feel that I must make certain statements, not merely to the honestly elected members of the Republican National Convntion, but to the rank and file of the Republican party and to the honest people of the entire nation.

I went into this fight for certain great principles. At the moment I can only serve those principles by continuing to bear the personal responsibility which their advocacy has brought to me.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

The statement was given out to the press by O. K. Davis. It means that Roosevelt will stay in the fight.

THE COLISEUM, Chicago, June 20.—Temporary Chairman Root called the Republican National Convention to order at 12:02. Watson of Indiana, the Taft floor leader, moved a recess until 4 p. m. The motion was carried and a recess ordered.

CHICAGO, June 20.—The Roosevelt ranks are demoralized. There is mutiny in the camp, and confusion. The leaders are deserting the Colonel.

First Roosevelt ordered a bolt, and bolted himself. Some of the leaders refused to follow.

Governor Deneen of Illinois announced that his State was regular, T. R. or no T. R., and declined to lead a delegation.

Then came the announcement that Roosevelt had released all his delegates. This was confirmed at Roosevelt headquarters by Regis H. F. Post, Governor of Porto Rico under Roosevelt.

He was shortly followed by Bill Flinn of Pennsylvania, who said:

"I have just left Colonel Roosevelt. Any report that he has released the delegates instructed for him is the wildest sort of a yarn."

TAFT WITHDRAWAL RUMOR ALSO.

At the same time the rumor factory on the Taft side got equally busy. According to reports from ordinarily reliable sources Taft had ordered "Uncle" Murray Crane to withdraw his name as soon as the Roosevelt bolt became an accomplished fact, and the administration forces had beaten the ex-President. With this report came word that a compromise on Senator Cummins of Iowa had been agreed upon.

No sooner had these reports become current when a bulletin was issued from the White House denying that Taft had any notion of withdrawing or considering a compromise.

The Roosevelt delegates will be represented at a conference at 2 o'clock this afternoon by one man chosen from each delegation. These representatives will go into conference with Colonel Roosevelt to map out a course of action. Announcement of this conference was accompanied by formal denials from Governor Deneen and Senator Clapp that Roosevelt has released his delegates.

Roosevelt May Back Hadley.

Colonel Roosevelt announced privately today that this is not a fight for a man, but for a principle, and that he will not be guided by personal considerations. He is said to have declared that Governor Hadley will be a satisfactory candidate, provided he be nominated without the votes of the seventy-eight stolen delegates.

Governor McGovern of Wisconsin, defeated by Elihu Root for temporary chairman of the Republican convention, held a long conference with Roosevelt in the latter's quarters at the Congress Hotel today. The conference was considered as adding importance to the possibilities of La Follette's chances of being named as a dark horse.

Colonel Roosevelt's ultimatum to his delegates in the Republican National Convention issued before he went to bed this morning, that they must bolt the convention if the seventy-eight "tainted delegates are retained in their seats, still stood today, according to word given out by a close friend of the Oyster Bay man.

"I never act until I mean real action," is a personal motto of Colonel Roosevelt, in which he takes great pride.

Deserted by Leaders.

The colonel was unusually careful in the selection of the men, whom he summoned to his first war council today. He knew there was recoil threatened in his camp. He parted in anger with Governor Hadley of Missouri early this morning.

Senator Joseph M. Dixon of Montana, is said also to have incurred the colonel's displeasure by objecting seriously to becoming "irregular."

The defection of Dixon is said to have been a severe blow to Roosevelt. There were reports of an imminent change of the Colonel's field generals before noon, at which it was said Roosevelt's final plan of battle was to be announced at a caucus of his leaders and delegates.

William Flinn of Pennsylvania, Governor Johnson of California and George W. Perkins are still considered absolutely dependable and were called in conference early.

Colonel Roosevelt's followers appealed today to the credentials committee from the decision of the Republican National Committee. The battle over the seating of seventy-eight delegates given to Taft was fought over again.

Ormsby McHarg, former foe of Roosevelt, but now one of his active leaders, appeared before the committee to present evidence of alleged fraud in these cases. His appearance there caused surprise in view of the early morning declaration of

HARVARD JOB LOST; HANGS SELF

Seventeen-year-old Joseph P. Burke, known to Harvard students as a bright and obliging lad in his place as a library assistant in the Social Ethics Library, Emerson Hall, Harvard, committed suicide today by hanging himself in the cellar of his home, No. 134 Bridge street, East Cambridge. A few minutes before the youth had smiled to his mother as he left the breakfast table.

It was just after 10 o'clock when the commencement parade was starting, that the boy's body was found in the cellar by an uncle. The youth lost his job at Harvard last week, but not because he wasn't efficient. When the library closed he was told he could come back in the Fall and go to work.

Young Burke's parents learned the boy had planned a Summer trip to New Hampshire with a Harvard professor or instructor. For some reason this had been called off. The parents could not believe the disappointment was keen enough to make their son despondent. They told the police they were unable to account for his suicide.

The lad made his home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Burke. His uncle visited the family today and missed his nephew. Searching the house, he discovered the boy's body in the cellar. About his neck was a rope made into a noose. One end was attached to a water pipe at the ceiling. At the boy's feet was an orange box on which the boy had mounted when he tied the noose about his neck.

3 Shoe Factories to Move Away from Lynn

Companies Doing Combined Business of $4,000,000 a Year Seek New Locations—Blame High Labor Cost.

Three large shoe factories, doing a combined business of more than $4,000,000 a year, will remove soon from Lynn, and at least ten others are contemplating a change of site. The reason given is the high cost of labor. Tais will be the severest industrial blow that ever hit Lynn. Most of the employes are expected to follow the factories to their new locations.

The first firm to move will be the Thomson Crooker Company. The concern has large factories on Western avenue, employs about 1,200 hands and does a business of $1,000,000 a year. The firm will occupy a new factory in Roxbury, which it has just built. Officials say it cost six cents a pair more to make shoes now than it did two years ago, and that there is no profit in making shoes in Lynn.

Another firm to go is that of A. H. Creighton & Co. That company will remove to Dover, N. H., where it has leased a factory. The Randall-Adams Co. also is looking for a new location. The officials of the United Shoe Workers of America claim the price of labor is no higher than it ever was, and that the fault lies with the high cost of material.

JORDAN TO HEAR FATE TOMORROW

Chester S. Jordan, the Somerville wife-murderer, will be resentenced to death in Middlesex Superior Criminal Court at East Cambridge tomorrow morning at 9:30 or 10 o'clock. Sentence will be pronounced by either Judge Charles U. Bell or Judge William B. Stevens, who presided at the Jordan trial.

It was Judge Bell who passed the original sentence on Jordan, by which he was to have been executed in the week beginning March 12, 1911. An appeal to the United States Supreme Court saved him then. A month ago that court denied Jordan a new trial. Jordan has been informed of the adverse action. He bears the news well.

September 3 next will be the fourth anniversary of the murder of Honora Jordan, for whose death Jordan must go to the chair.

He is married and has four children.

Then they shook hands all around with their mates and everybody went to the nearest place to celebrate the resurrection proper. John and "Joe" were reported by the Nelson as being lost in a fog Sunday. The Washakie picked them up.

Pope's Health Again Cause of Anxiety

ROME, June 20.—The Pope's health is again causing anxiety. He shows increasing fatigue and a lassitude which is both physical and mental. His audiences of late have been much rarer and more restricted.

Indeed, the Pope has ceased what may be called informal conversations and now confines his interviews to the ritual benediction and to giving his hand to be kissed. His regular receptions of Cardinals Gotti, Rampolla and Respighi, prefects of the principal congregations, are now reduced to fortnightly interviews.

SUNDAY'S AMERICAN

JUDGE HEARS OF DYNAMITING

An alleged verbal confession said to have been made to the police by John R. Hutchinson Jr., of No. 160 Tremont street Brighton, was told to Judge Barnard today in the Brighton District Court when Hutchinson was arraigned on charges of having dynamite in his home and of conspiracy to place dynamite on the Elevated tracks on Commonwealth avenue tea days ago.

With Hutchinson was arraigned William H. Schanberg, a striking car conductor, who was charged with conspiracy. Sergeant Mullen of the Brighton police station told the court Hutchinson had made a confession, to him after his arrest. Judge Barnard held Hutchinson and Schanberg for the Grand Jury. Hutchinson' bail was set at $3,000 and Schanberg's at $2,500.

"We intended to tie up the lines—not to take any lives," Mullen said Hutchinson had told him. "On the Sunday night before the dynamite sticks were found, Schanberg, two other men and myself went to McMurter's lodge where we found a chest with a lock on it. I had a key to the driver and used this to get the chest open. I took out three sticks of dynamite and gave two to Schanberg. Somebody else gave me two more sticks. This made three I had. They were the same three found in my house.

"That night Schanberg, I and the two other men went to Commonwealth avenue near St. Paul street on the incline, and placed two sticks of dynamite by the side of the rails. We lit it. It burned up, but failed to explode. It did no damage.

"As to the other two sticks found broken in half by the police on Commonwealth avenue, I know nothing, absolutely nothing, about them. I had no hand in placing the sticks there."

Attorney Henry F. Wood, counsel for Hutchinson, asked that Hutchinson be examined by a physician. Judge Barnard decided, however, to continue with the case. Other witnesses besides Mullen were Sergeant Harrington, Captain McCarr of police headquarters, District Chief Matheson, Patrolman Howland of Brighton, and Michael Gilligan, the dynamite expert. Major Thomas L. Walsh represented Shanberg, and A. E. Pisanski appeared for the Boston Elevated. William M. Orgold of the Carmen's Union was present in the court room.

STEAM ROLLER WORKS IN G. O. P. CREDENTIALS COMMITTEE

ROOSEVELT MEN RETURN TO COMMITTEE, DESPITE BOLT THREAT.

Colonel Roosevelt that the existing convention must not be further recognized.

Suggestion of Backdown.

"Does this mean a backdown on Colonel Roosevelt's declaration that the present Republican convention must not be recognized further?" McHarg was asked.

"Colonel Roosevelt's speeches only applied to the 'gag rules' which they had introduced in the credentials committee," McHarg replied.

"Are the amendments which were made to the rules sufficient to satisfy the Roosevelt faction?"

"I don't know," said McHarg. "We will at least get a chance to speak on cases for a few minutes."

The Alabama cases were the first heard by the credentials committee.

A majority of the Roosevelt holters from the credentials committee, who walked out when the steam-roller choked off protesting Roosevelt men, returned to that body today.

"The subsequent action of the committee in broadening the rules was a victory for us," declared Hugh Halbert of Minnesota, one of the Roosevelt holders in the committee.

When the committee got into session no contestants were present and this caused a row. The Roosevelt men insisted that the State contestants be notified to appear in the order named in the list of contestants.

Uproar in Committee.

Halbert protested and was gavelled down by Chairman Devine of Colorado.

"This session will proceed in an orderly fashion," he cried.

Several men were on their feet shouting at once. Devine pounded his gavel and finally got enough order to be heard.

"Call the roll of the State contests," he ordered, "and let those who are ready come in."

"Alabama," called the secretary, and in a moment the contesting lawyers filed in. Ormsby McHarg is the lead.

The roll-call was called again. Several of the Roosevelt men had not reached the room.

"I move that we adjourn for fifteen minutes," said W. S. Lander.

On a vive voce vote, Lander lost.

"We want to make a motion," cried Lander. We want fair play."

A great howl up from the Taft men. They had steam up and were anxious to go on.

"You are out of order; sit down," shouted Devine. "Proceed with the ninth Alabama case."

Order was restored. Alexander C. Birch, credential committeeman from Alabama, was one of the contested delegates in the ninth Alabama case. He declared that he did not propose to vote on the case as a committeeman.

Alabama Case Taken Up.

George R. Handley of Alabama presented the ninth Alabama case. Francis J. Heney of California, the Roosevelt leader who led the bolt last night, did not appear. Hulbert led the remaining Roosevelt men.

Here is the list of other absentees as shown by the roll-call: C. H. Crowles, North Carolina; Dan Norton, Oklahoma; O. K. Way, South Dakota; M. E. McFarland, Wisconsin; F. E. Mondell, Wyoming; T. F. Shakleford, Alaska.

R. R. McCormick of Illinois was not present at the opening, but appeared at 10 o'clock and conferred with Chairman Devine before he went on the floor and asked if he could send a proxy because of the condition of his voice. Unanimous consent gave McCormick the right and the case proceeded.

Under the rules none but members of the committee who are involved in contests could vote or remain in the committee while the committee was discussing the acting upon his case.

The ninth Alabama Roosevelt contestants were Oscar H. Huntley and G. R. Lewis. The Taft men are James D. Sloan and J. Rivers Carter, who are now on the temporary roll of the convention. Committeeman Shackleford later arrived at the committee room. Handley claimed his men to be elected delegates because Taft men were elected at a convention, th call for which was not legally issued. He asserted that a little notice was published, but no call was ever properly published.

Judge Handley drove in a sensational spike when he sprang an affidavit of D. C. Hancock, secretary of the Taft, or alleged bolting convention. The affidavit said in part:

"Had there been no split I would have remained in the regular convention and voted to endorse Mr. Taft and to support Mr. Fairley."

"This man was secretary of their convention, and yet he called our convention unlawful and illegal and declared that we remained with the regulars," declared Handley.

This was new evidence secured since the adjournment of the National Committee. Judge O. D. Street called for the Taft side of the contest.

A report that caused a big stir this morning, but which was denied from Washington, was that President Taft had notified Senator Crane that the President's name would be withdrawn as soon as the Roosevelt bolt became an accomplished fact, and that the administration forces and beaten the ex-President. Reports of a compromise on Senator Cummins of Iowa were persistent.

A three-hour conference was held early today by Senator Crane and Senator Kenyon of Iowa, the Cummins commander-in-chief. This ended early in the day and at that time Senator Crane stated that the two had discussed replacing Taft with Cummins before the convention and that there was a good reason to believe that the factional controversy would be settled.

Cummins Opposes Recall.

A great part of the discussion was given up to the platform that Cummins would insist upon if nominated. Senator Kenyon made it plain that Cummins would demand a progressive platform containing no planks favoring reactionary methods or measures.

Senator Kenyon pleased the Taft leader when he said that Cummins was not in favor of the recall of judges either in the manner advocated by Roosevelt or in any other form. He was, however, said Kenyon, an advocate of the initiative and referendum.

After Kenyon and Crane separated a caucus of the Iowa delegation was called to reach a definite decision as to the platform to be put forward. John McVickers, one of Cummins' chief advisers, said later:

"If Senator Cummins should prove acceptable to the Taft followers as a compromise candidate, the Roosevelt wing of the party cannot possibly refuse to support him, because his progressiveness has to be admitted by all."

Reports that Hadley had warned Colonel Roosevelt that he would not consider bolting the convention gave him standing among the rank and file of the Taft delegates, who were strongly impressed by the Governor's generalship in the convention, though beaten.

Rumors emanating from the Taft camp were that Hadley would be offered the vice-presidential nomination if the original Taft program were adhered to and the President was nominated.

Delay the Convention.

The Taft leaders held a long conference at the Congress Hotel today and decided to "go on with the program and let Roosevelt bolt if he wishes."

To avert an immediate crisis, however, they adopted a plan to adjourn until 4 p. m., immediately after convening, in order to give the credentials committee an opportunity to finish its work.

When the report concerning the communication between Senator Crane and the President, regarding the President's withdrawal, was laid before William Barnes, Jr., of New York, he said:

"The report is not true. There is nothing to it."

But while he made this statement it was positively known that he, with Senators Penrose and Crane, had been in conference with both the representatives of Cummins and LaFollette.

It is known that Barnes told these men:

"We are standing pat with Taft until all question of the defeat of Roosevelt is out of the way. If it then becomes necessary for us to face the situation of picking another candidate we will cross that bridge when we get to it. We are skating on very thin ice."

Illinois Will Not Bolt.

The first man to get the waking ear of the New York leader today as he got out of bed was a field representative of La Follette. This scout came to get some tidings as to the attitude of the Barnes forces toward La Follette in event there came a switch after the Roosevelt bolt.

The Illinois delegation will not follow Colonel Roosevelt in any bolt today nor on any day. They will remain in the Republican convention at the Coliseum. This was admitted today by Governor Deneen.

National Committeeman West corroborated Deneen, saying:

"The Illinois delegation will be in its seats when the convention opens today and it will remain there throughout the session. We are for Roosevelt, but we are also regular."

ROOSEVELT ORDERED BOLT IN NIGHT MEETING

CHICAGO, June 20.—The Roosevelt men, leaders and delegates held a tumultuous meeting shortly after midnight this morning. Roosevelt adherents on the Credentials Committee had walked out of the room where that body was deliberating. All felt that the crisis was near.

"Bill" Flinn made a speech. Others spoke. There were hot arguments and cries of "Bolt!" and "No! No!" shot back and forth across the room.

Then the Colonel entered.

"I'm Through," Says Colonel.

His face was set in hard lines. He wasted no time, but climbed where all could see and hear him, and began to speak.

Here are some of his decisive sentences:

"As far as I am concerned, I AM THROUGH!" he shouted.

"When you go back into the convention hall, I hope you will introduce a resolution that not one of those fraudulently seated delegates shall vote on any question in the credentials committee or in the convention.

"Don't lie down again if they beat you by fraudulent votes.

"If you are voted down, I hope you, the real and lawful majority of the convention, will organize as such.

"You will do it if you have the courage and loyalty of your convictions."

A tumult of cheers swept the room when the Colonel finished. Governor Johnson of California entered. He was lifted to a chair. The delegates walked breathlessly to hear him.

"Gentlemen," Governor Johnson began, "you have heard what we are going to do tomorrow. We are going to stop dilly-dallying with this robbing convention.

"We are going in there to fight, and we are prepared for the birth of a NEW REPUBLICAN PARTY, which will nominate for President Theodore Roosevelt."

Hall Secured for Bolters.

All plans are made for the bolt. Orchestra Hall, on Michigan avenue, has been secured for the Roosevelt men's session. The fuse is laid, the priming is ready. It remains only to touch the match.

There was a rumor that men like Dixon, Borah, Hadley and others would refuse to follow the bolt.

"Will these men follow you?" Colonel Roosevelt was asked.

"I'll take everybody that is with me today out of that convention, except the delegates from New York, Maine, Vermont and Massachusetts," he cried.

"I'll bet every blessed delegate that is lined up with me, west of the Palisades."

That was the Colonel's answer.

The mass meeting followed a stormy session of the Roosevelt leaders, held early last evening. There were "Bill" Flinn of Pittsburg, Senator Dixon, the Roosevelt campaign manager; Governor Hadley of Missouri, Senator Borah of Idaho, all the other leaders and, in addition, the chairmen of the various Roosevelt State delegations. The meeting was in session for twenty minutes.

Flinn Presides.

Then every leader present was sent out at top speed to get together the members of his delegation. Megaphone announcements were made. Messengers were dispatched in every direction. In ten minutes every Roosevelt delegate in or near Congress Hotel was in the Florentine room.

The meeting was called to order by Flinn. It was necessary for him to rap for several minutes before he could be heard. He said:

"Gentlemen, 82 out of 84 Pennsylvania delegates have voted to leave this convention. We spent two hours discussing the proposition. They say their duty is more important than any they may have in November.

"You delegates have witnessed the action of the National Committee. If this thing is to continue we might as well call the holding National Conventions and turn this country over to Penrose, Murphy, 'Pat Steve' and the rest of their kind. It is bad enough to have to fight them in every State, territory and insular possession, but it is worse to go up against a bunch like this."

E. C. Carrington, Jr., the member of the credentials committee from Maryland, interrupted:

"I just left the credentials committee. I told them I was ashamed to stay there."

"Who was the chairman?" shouted a voice.

"Devine."

Hiss Devine's Name.

The name was greeted by hisses.

"I said I considered it a disgrace to sit in such a committee and I would walk out, and I did it," said Carrington.

"Hooray for Maryland," was the shout.

"They wouldn't let us have stenographers, nor any publicity. They put the gag rule on us at once," said Carrington.

Flinn again addressed the meeting.

"I believe we should have gone out of the convention the moment they elected Root," he cried.

"West Virginia," shouted another.

"Ohio," "California," and "Tennessee" were the shouts from all parts of the hall.

"This isn't a case of the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt" cried Flinn. "I don't care so much about that. He doesn't. Never again will a National Committee duplicate the crooked and rotten methods of this committee."

Opposes Bolt Talk.

"If we leave now, we are quitting before we are licked," he shouted. "We will win in time if we fight right. I beg of you do not talk this way. You are injuring Theodore Roosevelt more than any other way. We are deserting before the battle."

"No, we are not," shouted a voice.

"Yes, we are," said King.

Flinn rapped King out of order.

"I am going out of this convention at the time fixed by Theodore Roosevelt," shouted Flinn. "I am going to follow that great and wonderful man."

"What does he say now?" shouted someone.

"Go!" cried Flinn, "and we are going with him."

MANY OF COLONEL'S FOLLOWERS TELL HIM THEY WILL STAY IN OLD PARTY.

WHITE HOUSE DENIAL OF REPORT PRESIDENT PLANS TO WITHDRAW

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Emphatic denial was made at the White House today that the President intended to withdraw his name from consideration by the Chicago convention and throw his support to a compromise candidate.

Senators and Representatives telephoned and called personally to assure the President of their support and convinced him the time had passed for a compromise. Senator McCumber urged the President to fight to the end and to insist that his managers carry out the program as outlined. Former Representative Wood of Ohio called to express like sentiments. Secretary of State Knox and Attorney General Wickersham were with the President for an hour, conferring on department matters and the political situation at Chicago.

"His nerve is superb," said the attorney general. "He has not allowed the Chicago convention or the bolting of Roosevelt or anything else to disturb his equilibrium."

Secretary Knox declared he had not heard that the President ever considered withdrawing. He declared the President would stand firm.

Sidelights of Big G. O. P. Convention

Many Incidents Human and Humorous

Roosevelt Thanks Woman Who Tried to Turn Stampede to Him.

CHICAGO, June 20.—James D. Preston, head of the Senate press galleries, staggered into the press box under a tremendous load of mail.

"The Coliseum postmaster wanted me to help him get out the newspapermen's mail," he said. "It's all for one reporter, William Jennings Bryan."

Roosevelt's political activities temporarily were suspended for a time yesterday when he expressed his appreciation of a woman's effort to stampede the convention in his favor. Right in the midst of a conference with Senator Dixon and several others of his advisers at his headquarters, Mr. Roosevelt thanked Mrs. W. A. Davis for attempting to get his name in nomination.

"It was a bully piece of work," Colonel Roosevelt said to Mrs. Davis.

Mrs. Davis was accompanied by A. E. Perry, chairman of the Oklahoma delegation.

Kermit Roosevelt, spends most of his time racing up and down the Michigan avenue lake front in a high-power automobile owned by a chum who lives in Chicago. Kermit is enamored of speed like his name. He is raising the dearest little mustache. Within another three months it is confidently predicted that, by diligently trying, he may be able to curl it

ETHEL ROOSEVELT, HERE FOR HARVARD COMMENCEMENT

Miss Roosevelt is the guest for Commencement Week of her aunt, Mrs. George Lee of Chestnut Hill.

The Colonel's daughter is filled with confidence that father will win in whatever he undertakes. In fact, her opinion of her distinguished daddy may be summed up in a popular song, which runs:

"What's the matter with father?
He's all right!"

Miss Roosevelt is the recipient, naturally, of heaps of attention at Harvard and is taking a healthy girlish delight in the college gatherings, the dances, singing and other features which give Harvard Commencement Week such a charm for feminality.

"I stood it all right," said one sergeant-at-arms, "until I saw the delegation from Florida eating a mid-afternoon meal. It consisted of mulled milk tablets. The bottle containing them passed from hand-to-hand, and the delegates chewed their tablets with great satisfaction. My mouth watered when I looked at them. I squeezed through the crowd and went down stairs and bought a whole strawberry pie. Right next to me at the counter was Chauncey Depew. He ate his pie with the rest of us, with no post-prandial intentions."

The most careful man in Chicago and the most interested in the "big fight" is Nicholas Longworth, representative from Ohio in President Taft's Congressional District and son-in-law of Roosevelt. "Nick" evades the newspaper men and thinks twice before he says anything to his editest and most confidential friends. He never indulges in secrets.

"How's this fight going to end, Nick?" After much deliberation the Ohioan replied in whispering tones:

"I dunno—it's mighty hard to tell."

Three college professors are taking leading parts in the convention. President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia, who will second Taft's nomination; Professor Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard, who government of Harvard, who is a Roosevelt delegate-at-large from Massachusetts, and Professor William Draper Lewis, who is Roosevelt member of the committee on resolutions from Pennsylvania and dean of the law school of the University of Pennsylvania.

"Why does a politician wear a slouch hat?"

John G. Capers of California says it is as distinctive of the politician as the flowing necktie is of the artist or poet. George A. Knight, also of California, says politicians wear slouch hats to cover badly shaped heads. The wild and woolly Western hat, suggestive of bronchos and six-shooters, and manufactured in peaceful Hoboken, N. J., is the predominating headgear.

Harry New wears an immense soft black hat. Colonel Cecil Lyon sports a Panama that is many seasons old. Ormsby McHarg appears in a dinky derby. Franklin Murphy, former Governor of New Jersey wears a masterpiece of the "fried egg" variety. Senator Kenyon of Iowa has an extraordinary large pearl gray fedora, and Gifford Pichot affects a Panama with a broad brim that sticks out absolutely straight and truculent.

There are two tall men who meet daily at the Coliseum who look so much alike that they are compelled to look at their calling cards to learn their own identity. They are so nearly exactly alike that they don't use mirrors any more. When one man wants to see if his hat is on straight he looks at his double.

W. C. Weymouth, ex-Governor of Louisiana, is one-half of the duet and Charles Nagel, Secretary of Commerce and Labor, is the other. Both wear gray suits and hats and ties that are similar. A curious person asked Governor Weymouth if he would give the secret of telling the two men apart.

"Well, I have an almost certain way," said the ex-Rata executive, "but the mustache droops just a little more than Mr. Nagle's."

"I thank you—" began the inquirer.

"But I have found a serious obstacle to that," said Mr. Weymouth. "My memory is not of the best and, pshaw, I often forget which one of us has the longer mustache, and then I have to call in a third person to untangle us."

Railway officials are telling of a poker game in which Colonel Cecil Lyon and other Texans participated for the benefit of a number of "tenderfeet" spectators on the train. In reality it was a ten-cent limit affair, but for the benefit of the onlookers, the players bet a steer or a herd of steers or a section of land at every deal.

The onlookers breathed heavily when one of the players solicited for a $500 chip and Colonel Lyon calmly broke one in two and gave him half.

It remained for a few Chicago women to silence the prophetic William R. McKinley, manager for President Taft. Although it was not generally known, Mr. McKinley attended the suffrage meeting at the Illinois Theatre Sunday. He asked to speak for the President, sending notes to the platform, saying President Taft had come out for suffrage. The Chicago enthusiasts sent back word that if Mr. Taft had made an open and public avowal for the suffrage cause he might speak. Otherwise they said they would have to go on with the regular program. Mr. McKinley left without making an address.

Everyone knows what the Governor of North Carolina said to the Governor of South Carolina. Yesterday the Governor of Illinois and the Governor of California tried a variation of the story. It was during the short recess from the flow of oratory, and Governor Johnson had just started toward the lunch counter, when he met Governor Johnson of California triumphantly emerging from the crowd with two pieces of pie clutched in his hand.

"Thanks. I will," said Deneen. And the two Governors went off into a corner and ate joyously.

The downtown hotels yesterday entertained the largest number of guests since the World's Fair, according to several hotel managers. The Congress Hotel management declared the house held 2,500 persons, the largest number for three months. Twenty-six bartenders were on duty at the Congress last night.

Several New Englanders were converted to woman suffrage when they saw what the two women delegates from California, Mrs. Yesbella Blaney and Mrs. Florence Collins Porter, did for that Golconda of California.

Having learned a few things from the experiences of Tuesday, Mrs. Blaney and Mrs. Porter came to the Coliseum in the morning with a vast basket of sandwiches and fruit. There was enough of it to feed a Sunday School picnic and the ladies were as generous as politicians.

"Of course, I am not ready to say that it is time for votes for women," says Colonel J. Gray Estey of Brattleboro, "but that California's display certainly made all of us envious."

EVELYN THAW RESUMES STORY

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 20.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw will be called again today in court to tell of the more recent actions and mental condition of Harry K. Thaw. Her appearance as a witness for the State in its efforts to keep her husband in the asylum for the insane at Matteawan crowded the court room.

Her testimony covered her friendship with Thaw, from the time, ten years ago, when he first sought acquaintance with her as a chorus girl. She told of his proposal of marriage to Paris three years later, his rage when she told of Stanford White, the Thaw marriage, his constant reversion to White and the shooting of White on the Madison Square Garden roof.

Crowd to See Mrs. Thaw.

Mrs. Thaw went to White Plains with a young Englishman named Morrison, in whose company she has been seen frequently of late, and a young woman who was said to be a Mrs. Haines. The village folk literally fought to get a look at her.

She wore a coat suit of light tan colored material, with huge white ball buttons; a big black straw hat, with ostrich plumes curled evenly along each side of the brim; tan-colored shoes and stockings, and one of the new flaring collars, with a black stock attachment.

Her husband, when she entered the room and always afterward, kept his head from her. Nor did his mother or his sisters, Margaret and Alice, gave any sign of recognition.

She said she was now twenty-six years old and still the wife of Harry K. Thaw. She gave the dates of her meeting with him and their marriage, and then told of a trip they made to Paris before the wedding, the trip being in July, 1903.

Next she described how she had told him in a Paris hotel of an attack by Stanford White. She was not pressed for the details of this. She declined at that time to marry Thaw because of the White affair, she said.

"How did Thaw act?" inquired Jerome.

Tells of Her Husband's Misery.

In a high-pitched, rather strident voice, with occasional languid leanings of her head on the right side and then left, Mrs. Thaw said:

"Thaw was very much upset. He sobbed and cried, but his nails and kept saying: 'My God! How dreadful! How terrible!' After that he constantly referred to the affair. Sometimes he would wake me up in the night to ask me about the details. Every time he was highly nervous and excited."

"Did he ever say anything about whipping you?" she was asked.

"Yes; he had a mania for obedience and that sort of thing, and told me that what I needed was a good whipping," she said with a half smile. She described briefly the shooting of Stanford White. She displayed no emotion.

PROBE BROCKTON DEATH BY CYANIDE

BROCKTON, June 20.—The death of Herbert Goldstein of No. 10 Clarkson street, Worcester, who was found in the waiting room of the railroad station, apparently suffering from potassium cyanide poisoning, is believed by the police to be a suicide. Medical Examiner A. E. Paine made an autopsy. The police are continuing their inquiry.

EVELYN THAW, WHO RESUMED STORY AT HEARING TODAY

Girl Who Jilted Capt. Alleyne Secretly Wed

DETROIT, Mich., June 20.—With a ceremony almost clandestine in character, so swift and secret it was, Miss Carrol Newberry, who jilted Captain W. H. Alleyne of the British army two weeks ago, has been married to Frank Brooks, son of the vice-president of the Detroit United Railway.

Miss Newberry is the daughter of Truman H. Newberry. She created a sensation by jilting Captain Alleyne. Brooks is the youth who was the cause of her casting aside the officer of the Queen's Own regiment.

There was no announcement of the wedding, no invitations, no wedding party except a very few of the closest friends of the bride and groom.

The couple appeared at the county clerk's office and obtained a marriage license. Then they entered a motor car and were driven to a church. The bride was attended by one girl friend. W. J. Gray, Jr., acted as the best man. No one took the part of giving away the bride.

COMMENCEMENT AT BOSTON COLLEGE; D. I. WALSH SPEAKER

David I. Walsh of Fitchburg was the commencement speaker at the last Commencement exercises ever to be held in the present building of Boston College on James street. Thirty-one students were given the degree of A. B. The Master of Arts degree was conferred on a former graduate.

The program opened with orations by John J. Phelan, Stephen H. Mahoney, Andrew F. Harrington and James E. Gibbons. Mr. Gibbons delivered the valedictory.

Mr. Walsh took as his subject "The Duties of Citizenship." He pointed out that the two important duties of the college graduate were his allegiance to God and to his country. The degrees were conferred by Bishop Anderson of the class of '87.

BLOW FROM BASEBALL BAT FATAL TO BOY

BROCKTON, June 20.—William Feeney, the twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Feeney of East Bridgewater, died at the Brockton hospital as a result of being struck in the stomach by a baseball bat. The boy was watching a game between East Bridgewater and the Atlantics, when the stick slipped from the batter's hand and hit him.

MASTER OF ARTS.

The most notable recipient were Colonel George Washington Goethals, chief engineer of the Panama canal; Charles Francis Stokes, surgeon-general of the navy, and William Cameron Forbes, Governor-General of the Philippines.

In conferring the degrees, Colonel Goethals was referred to as a "soldier who has set a standard for the conduct of civil work." Forbes was called "a son of Harvard who craved a service for his country."

Five hundred and thirty seniors received the degrees in regular order at the exercises. It was Harvard's two hundred and seventy-seventh commencement.

Opens with Procession.

The exercises commenced with the famous procession of "the president and fellows, the corporation and board of overseers, the Governor of the Commonwealth and staff, the sheriffs of Middlesex and Suffolk counties and the faculty," with the guests selected to be honored. They assembled before University Hall and marched to Sanders Theatre, where the exercises will be held.

The commencement parts were read after prayer by Professor George Herbert Palmer of the department of philosophy; Samuel Hazard Cross of New Bedford was the selection of the committee of the faculty for the Latin part, while the other students honored were Homer Hargrave Breland, English part; Louis Hopeful Bauer of Jamaica Plain, medical part, and Robert Humphrey Montgomery of Sanford, O., law part.

In the afternoon at 1:45 the exercises in the quadrangle back of Sever Hall were held. The classes who are in Cambridge for anniversaries formed in the yard and marched by sections to the quadrangle to listen to addresses by President A. Lawrence Lowell and the guests of the university, while the gift of the class of 1887, which is celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of its graduation, is announced by William Endicott, Jr., of Boston, the commencement marshal.

The celebrations of classes, which were postponed until today, will be held in the afternoon. All day yesterday the yard was thronged by returning graduates, who visited old scenes before attending the various jollifications which were held in and about Boston.

The last meeting of the present Board of Overseers for the year was held in University Hall and the annual election of six to take the places of the vacating memberships is held in Massachusetts Hall.

Countess and Baron End Lives for Love

VIENNA, June 20.—"We are the victims of hopeless love.

"We wished to die together.

"Please deal gently with our bodies."

Such was the last letter, a confession at once of love and suicide, written by Countess Alice Alberti, a beautiful woman of thirty. The Countess and Baron Knerzer, ten years her junior, died together, the Baron's father having forbidden him to marry her only because of the disparity of their ages.

The double tragedy was enacted in a railway car, and was discovered when the car reached the station. The Countess, who had been shot through the bosom, was found on a car chair. With both hands she clutched a cameo at her breast.

The Baron, shot through the temple, lay on the floor of the car, a revolver by his side. The conclusion is inevitable that he shot the Countess then put the pistol to his head.

Countess Alberti was a niece of Count de Longay, the second husband of Princess Stephanie of Belgium, who first married the Archduke Rudolf of Austria, heir-apparent to the throne.

CONVENTION NEWS OF THE NEW ENGLANDERS

By ELIAS M'QUAID.

ELIAS M'QUAID

CHICAGO, Ill., June 20.—If anybody in New England wants to know when she may expect husband, son or brother home from Chicago, this is to inform her that when the affair in the Coliseum was resumed, this morning, the fifteenth Republican National Convention had in two whole days disposed of exactly as much business as an ordinary convention gets rid of in one hour.

The sum total of two days' work is that a temporary chairman has named a committee on credentials.

And now, when that committee has today made its report back to the convention, we shall see the same old fight over again—the fight in which there have already been two roll calls.

There will be a majority report, recommending going ahead with the ten hundred and seventy-eight delegates named in the roll prepared by the Republican National Committee (Taft) and a minority report demanding—and "demand" will be the word—that seventy-six of these gents be given the gate and their chairs handed over to seventy-six followers of Roosevelt, Hadley, Heney and Hiram Johnson of California.

High Sign Going Up.

The convention—judging by its vote on Tuesday in the McGovern-Root matter and its vote yesterday, to lay the Governor Dineen suggestion on the table—will accept the report of the Committee on Credentials majority.

And then—if signs and words and threats mean anything—the high sign will be hung up for all good Roosevelt people and they will proceed to bolt a little convention of their own, leaving New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, Indiana, the Democrats of the South and the handful of delegates from Alaska, Porto Rico and Hawaii to renominate President Taft and see how far they can get with him.

There was a lot of talk in the galleries yesterday afternoon and around in the big hotels last night and this morning about Governor Hadley as the "Ideal Compromise Candidate."

I asked former Governor Floyd of New Hampshire what he thought about it; whether there was anything in it. The Governor, like the rest of the New Hampshire delegation, is loyally for Taft.

"Hadley is impossible," Governor Floyd said. He did make a very good impression on Tuesday, but he queered himself yesterday when he let that young woman from the gallery introduce fiery features to a Republican National Convention. I was told an hour before that stunt was pulled off that the Roosevelt people had a young woman in the galleries for the purpose. I do not believe that the President's friends will listen to any Hadley suggestion."

Mr. Floyd said this morning that the Credential Committee may be expected to report along about noon. He thinks it unlikely that the convention will run into next week.

Same Old Fight On.

The Hon. Perry H. Dow of Manchester, on the other hand, and Mr. Dow has attended many National Conventions, expects to be here next Monday.

"Today," Mr. Dow said, "We shall have the same old fight over again. This will be the last stand. The debate is likely to be quite long over it will be long drawn out. So we shall have disposed of Thursday—the day on which, when Republicans dwell together in peace and harmony—we were sent to name Presidents of the United States. Now I am by no means superstitious, but I should not like to pick a Republican candidate, especially under the circumstances, on a Friday. If I were a gambler, I should wager that this convention will take at least all of this week."

There is some anxiety hereabouts about the whereabouts of Governor Robert Perkins Bass of New Hampshire, who is somewhere in this big city with Colonel Winston Churchill of Cornish. So far as has been observed, neither of the New Hampshire Progressive leaders has as yet attended the daily conference of Colonel Roosevelt's advisers.

BRYAN-PARKER FIGHT FOR CHAIR

BALTIMORE, Md., June 20.—Because of William Jennings Bryan's ultimatum that Judge Alton B. Parker is "too conservative" for temporary chairman of the Democratic convention the chairmanship race was badly mixed today when the subcommittee on arrangements of the Democratic National Committee met to plan details for the organization of the convention.

Bryan is still a potent factor in the Democratic party, as was shown by the consternation among politicians when they learned the Nebraskan would make a personal issue of Parker as chairman. Over the telephone from Chicago, Bryan told a member of the National Committee it would be "suicidal" for the Democrats to name a conservative like Parker to make the keynote speech. The chairmanship contest seemed to have simmered down today to desultory rivalry among Judge Parker, Senator Newman and Theodore A. Bell.

Don't Want to Say No.

It was predicted Bryan might check the plans of the committee on arrangements to acquiesce in the suggestion of New York that Judge Parker be named. None of the candidates feel like opposing the New Yorker openly because the New York delegation casts ninety votes and the New Yorkers take the position they ought to have their way about the chairmanship.

It was emphatically denied at Champ Clark headquarters that a prominent Clark supporter has "flopped" to Harmon in the hope of obtaining second place on the ticket should the Ohio Governor be nominated. The Clark boomers said the story is like others put out by the opposition in the hope of injuring Clark.

Clark supporters confidently assert the Speaker, going into the convention with the largest number of votes of any of the candidates in the race will gain rather than lose after the first ballot and some of the more enthusiastic boomers predict a Clark victory on the second or third ballot.

Show Clark's Strength.

Representatives of Clark declare the Speaker will receive twice as many votes on the first ballot as any other candidate. They point out that he has twice as many instructed votes as Governor Wilson, and three times as many as Mr. Underwood and Governor Harmon combined, and that he will receive from the uninstructed delegates an equal proportion of the vote.

They point out that Clark carried every doubtful State in which his name was supmitted to the primaries or the convention. They enumerated among the doubtful States California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Missouri, Maine, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, West Virginia and Wyoming.

Washington's '400' to Invade Baltimore

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Washington's Four Hundred will move en masse to Baltimore next week to assist in the social affairs which will be given during the Democratic Convention. Mr. and Mrs. John R. McLean have taken a house in the Green Spring Valley and have sent out invitations for many social functions.

One of the most important affairs will be the reception by the Mayor of Baltimore and Mrs. Preston on June 24.

Among those receiving with Mrs. Preston will be Mrs. William Jennings Bryan, Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Mrs. John Temple Graves, Mrs. Norman E. Mack and Mrs. Thomas Taggart.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter will be the hosts at several luncheons, and Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont, who prefer the comforts of their million-dollar home in Washington hotel accommodations in Baltimore, will motor over every day with a large party of house guests.

Representative and Mrs. Littleton, who own one of the show places of the Monumental city, will entertain a large party of guests from Washington and New York, and will give a round of luncheons and teas in their honor.

TWO WOMEN HURT WHEN CAR STARTS

Mrs. Katherine E. Hurley, of No. 53 East fifth street, South Boston, and her daughter, Miss Katherine E., were injured in front of the Dorchester street transfer station, when a car from which they were alighting started unexpectedly. Mrs. Hurley received injuries to her left hip and side. Miss Hurley struck against the seat in front and received injuries to her side.

6,740 GRADUATE TOMORROW FROM BOSTON SCHOOLS

Just 6,740 girls and boys will be graduated from Boston's seventy public elementary schools at the graduation exercises to be held tomorrow. The total is larger by 145 pupils than last year's. This year the boys outnumber the girls. Tomorrow 3,413 boys will receive their diplomas, while 3,327 girls will graduate.

The number of boy graduates is a gain of 195 boys over a year ago, while the number of girls shows a loss of thirty in the total. Oliver Wendell Holmes School graduates the largest number of any, 169 boys and 140 girls. Wendell Phillips School for boys will graduate 144.

The total given includes the elementary schools in Hyde Park, and also the Horace Mann School, last year rated as a special school.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

Honeymoon Couples Swell Chicago Crowd

CHICAGO, June 20.—Chicago is doing an increased business in June brides this week as the result of the Republican National convention. L. C. Legner, county marriage license clerk, has submitted figures on licenses of the last few days which show the aid to matrimony in the big political event. The daily list has been running well above two hundred. Mr. Legner argued yesterday that the convention, large crowds and excursion rates attract prospective couples to Chicago. He figured that a large part of the "convention couples" have been elopers.

Yesterday was "brides' day," according to jewelers. One sold his store engraved 300 rings for June 19. The day changes with the years. Last year June 14 was the heavy day.

$500 DAMAGE FOR PRICE OF 7 BEERS

On a charge of cutting twenty feet of cable and selling it for 35 cents as old junk to buy beer, John Dwyer, No. 37 Pulaski avenue, and John Fahey, No. 37 Dresser street, were today sentenced by Judge Fallon in the South Boston Court to serve six months at Deer Island. They appeal. On Saturday, the New England Telephone Company discovered that one of its trunk line, affecting 100 stations, was suddenly crippled. It cost the company $500 to repair what brought the two accused men exactly seven beers between them.

"BARNES SEES RUIN OF REPUBLIC AND SOCIALISM IN EVERY HADLEY YELL."

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

CONVENTION HALL, CHICAGO, June 20.—The big event of yesterday was a demonstration that lasted more than fifty minutes. Yells, cheers, parading by delegates and a wild performance by a lady in a blue hat kept the convention in an uproar for almost an hour. It began when Hadley of Missouri stood up beside Watson of Indiana on the platform. The two men led the Taft and T. R. forces.

Five minutes have passed and the yelling continues.

Now after six minutes the New York crowd has stopped yelling and the hard work is done by the T. R. men, especially by Illinois, Pennsylvania and California.

Eight minutes of yelling and still no lady has torn off her hat to wave it.

This is unusual. The noise is really of a superior kind and those that did not go out are glad. Just ten minutes are passed. Now delegates with the standards of their States all known as T. R. States, are parading the hall. Missouri and New Jersey, Pennsylvania, South Dakota and others.

One or two Taft States begin to parade; Colorado, for instance. No one probably knows what it is all about. It was time for something to occur, and this was as good a time as any.

"Stampede Try."

Thirteen minutes have passed. National Committeeman Ward says: "This is an attempt to stampede the convention for Hadley. They are just trying it out."

Suppose the poet Montague should be right? Most interesting thought. The shouting has lasted fifteen minutes and continues, although Hadley has withdrawn to a seat on the platform. Watson also has withdrawn. His expression shows that he knows the yelling is for Hadley.

Eighteen minutes of cheering have passed, a long time for anyone but a serious candidate.

Secretary Gleason, of the convention, tells Louis Lang that Committeeman Ward is right, and that this cheering now lasting twenty minutes is a test of the convention to see how it will take the idea of Hadley in place of T. R. But many of the yellers are yelling for T. R. on their own hook. For instance the big brother of Medill McCormick, almost six and a half feet high, is yelling "We want Teddy!" in a way that would do credit to two bulls of Bashan.

In any case this yelling is not for Taft. Look at Barnes of New York. His stern face sees the ruin of the Republic and even Socialism in every yell. A thin young man jumping wildly climbs to the platform and yells, "We want Hadley." He is W. H. Coleman of McKeesport, Pa. He is persuaded to climb down, and does. Only the reporters hear what he says.

Root tells Louis Lang that he believes it is a plan to boom Hadley for President. The yelling has now lasted twenty-five minutes with no sign of dying out.

Enter "The Lady."

Twenty-nine minutes have passed. The lady has appeared at last. She is in the gallery with her hair down and her hands up, waving a picture of T. R. She does not know what it is all about, but is very happy. Anti-suffragettes take notice. Some man has taken the California gold bear into the gallery and has found another lady. This one is white with a blue hat and very good looking. Taf, who started making pictures, declares this lady is having one good time and she is. She stands under the gold bear and waves a Roosevelt picture, also waving both arms, screaming and delighting the delegates.

How serious a matter is politics, and why is woman barred.

Now the second lady has come down to the door with her blue hat, her gold bear and her long picture of T. R. She parades around the floor, delegates following.

She climbs onto the Speaker's platform and tries to make a speech. The reporters have her name. She is Mrs. W. A. Davis and lives in Chicago at No. 4232 Drexel boulevard. This is her happy day. No one yet has the heart to drag her down. Root, Hadley and Watson look on with a stiff expression. The delegates are half crazy. So is the lady. But she is having fun. A hundred men have climbed onto the platform after her.

This is quite a convention. One lady in the gallery points her finger at Billie Blue Hat and hisses. Jealous cat. Blue Hat is pulled off the platform by Schmettler, assistant chief of police. Root pounds with his gavel.

Three-quarters of an hour plus two minutes have passed, and the yelling goes on.

Lady Now Happy.

The blue hat lady is back in her gallery seat, happy, standing up waving her gold mesh bag. She has lost her T. R. picture and her breath, but not her gold bag or her happy smile. Women were just made for politics.

Root pounds desperately for two minutes. A clock yells through a megaphone. The blue hat lady hisses, shakes her fist at her own crowd, and waves a fan, more yells and grade ally storm dies after fifty minutes, but Hadley works out to speak, very pale and serious. Silence came at last and Hadley goes on where the whole thing started apparently at that. Watson corrected himself. No one knows what it is about. All that will and moved to refer Hadley's motion to the Committee on Credentials.

NO HOPE FOR BRYAN; MISS BRINKLEY SAYS HE'S GETTING BALD

Mr. Bryan is in his seat faithfully reporting. Miss Brinkley is making pictures of him, but it is difficult.

"Dear me," she says, "the last time I saw him me had the most lovely head of hair, all over his head."

This shows how women judge us from the outside and shows how valuable female suffrage might be to manufacturers of wigs and hair restorers.

Asked if she would vote to make a bald man President, Miss Brinkley answered simply, "Of course not; how could I."—Arthur Brisbane's story of the convention.

It was believed by many, including Root, that the demonstration was an attempt to stampede the convention for Hadley and take it from T. R. Subsequent events did not confirm this.

Now, at 3 o'clock, after four hours of talk and interruption, comes Watson of Indiana, who is Taft's biggest gun in the fight for contested seats.

Watson is a strong man. He began gently, but to him who yelled "Louder!" he said: "Give me a few minutes, boys, and you'll hear me for half a mile."

Watson an Honest Man.

Mr. Watson must be a pure and honest man. A Hearst reporter, a stranger to Watson, lent him five cents for car fare last night. A detractor said Watson borrowed it because he had nothing smaller than a thousand dollar bill. But his friends know that Watson is kept poor by purity, and has never made a cent out of politics. Watson makes as good a speech as any man in the convention, except Hadley, and he makes better gestures than anybody, usually with both arms at once.

He said something that brought Hadley to his side on the platform. The first really big yelling of the convention began and at the end of a minute still continues gaining in volume.

Young James Montague says, "It's a plant; they mean to make Hadley president."

But Montague is a poet. What do poets know about practical men?

The yelling still continues at the end of two minutes and has grown into a whirlwind.

Watson and Hadley stand side by side, both apparently amazed. The noise does take it as an effort of the Taft men to outyell the T. R. men. The two standing side by side are the competing champions of the two big fellows to the shadow.

Will Help Others To Learn About New Tonic.

As fast as they are received at Eaton drug stores statements by people who have tried the new tonic, Tona Vita, and will allow their names to be used will be published.

"I this way nervous, run-down men and women of Boston can learn just what this tonic is accomplishing for people in a similar condition.

The following statement is by Wiliam J. Young, 59 Ruggles Street, Boston:

This Tona Vita has done more for me than any medicine I have ever taken. I got the tonic a short time ago and am now feeling better than I have for a long time.

Before using this tonic I was completely run down. I slept poorly, had stomach trouble and at times I would be very nervous. I had little strength or energy and my work became a burden to me.

The first few days I noticed a great improvement. In fact, I began to improve after the first dose of Tona Vita. I could hardly believe it myself and thought it must be my imagination, as I had tried so many different remedies without relief. I have now taken about a bottle of the tonic and I am feeling better every way. I sleep well, eat well and have much more strength. The worn-out feeling has left me and I am not nervous as I was. This is a marvelous tonic, judging by what it has done for me."

No medicine can be successful unless it has a mission to accomplish. Tona Vita has a mission—it is introduced in this country to make tired-out, debilitated men and women healthier, happier and better prepared to cope with life. A similar preparation did this for thousands in Europe, and Tona Vita will be just as successful in the United States.

If all Bostonians who are struggling along, depressed in mind and body by nervous debility, unable to get any real enjoyment out of living, will give the tonic a trial, Tona Vita will lift the burden of ill health from thousands in this city alone.

There is little in life for an individual who is nervous, depressed and worn out mentally and physically. Positively the first dose of Tona Vita benefits any one in this condition and renewed strength and energy is gained every day. The tonic is on sale at all leading drug stores in Boston.

MISS RUTH LIPSON, A ROXBURY LEADER IN PRINCESS RACE

RUTH LIPSON

By THE PRINCESS EDITOR.

See how they do it at Chicago, girls! They are fighting every inch of the way. The candidate who wins the Presidential nomination will receive the honors because of the "never-give-up" spirit, the fighting grage that wins a Presidential election, a Princess election or any kind of a battle where the public vote is the one big factor. And don't think for a minute that the Presidential fight will be over after the candidates are nominated.

No, indeed! The vote-getting war will never cease or let up for the tiniest fraction of a second until the last ballot is counted on election day.

The same is true of the Princess contest. The battle is now raging merrily and it's anyone's race" until the polls close.

In a Presidential campaign, the winner's troubles begin after he is elected.

In a Princess election, there is nothing but joy and happiness for the chosen winners. No worries—no troubles—just enjoy the fruits of your energy.

And the harvest will surely be worth while! The Princess outfit, the ocean trips, and the numerous other prizes will be things to remember and take pleasure in for years to come.

And all for a little effort, NOW! The last vote in the Princess Contest will be printed in the AMERICAN on Saturday, July 6—only sixteen days more.

Wonders can be accomplished in sixteen days if the right kind of energy and ambition is present.

Don't wait for "tomorrow" to come; Double your vote income TODAY!

The future will take care of itself.

The vote standing list which will appear next Sunday will be an eventful one for many candidates.

The real workers in the contest are now beginning to show the results of their activity.

It is important that every candidate make the best possible showing in next Sunday's list.

The polls for this week close tomorrow at 11 a. m. All votes received after that time will not be counted until next week.

Don't miss Sunday's AMERICAN! It will contain besides the new vote list another page of photographs of contestants. The time is short!

Make the most of it!

Miss Ruth Lipson of No. 111 Intervale street, Roxbury, is one of the present leaders in the Princess race. She occupied seventh place in last Sunday's list and says she has only "just started to climb."

RED SOX CLIMB HIGHER IN RACE

NEW YORK, June 20.—Swell pitching by Hugh Bedient and timely hitting by his team mates, gave the Red Sox the first game in the series with the Highlanders yesterday.

The Yanks haven't gained a single decision on the Reds that Sox this season. The victory strengthened Boston's hold on the front position of the American League race.

The Red Sox had an ugly eye for the underhand slings of Jack Warhop and pasted the ball hard enough to omit runs home. Bedient was conservative with his hits and built a dozen constituted the Yankees' little contribution.

Manager Wolverton has presented more different lineups to the Yankees this season than there are holes in a sponge. Out sort of players just begin to get acquainted when a shake-up comes, and new faces appear in new positions.

Maloney, the outfielder from the New England League, was in centre field, and made good. Hal Chase was injured in morning practice by Zinn's ball, and Sinnott was at first base. The batting order was thoroughly trapped, with Maloney leading off.

Clyde Engle reintroduced himself to the hitting crowd at shortstop for the Red Sox in place of Chester Thomas, who is serving a sentence for less malicety in expressing a willingness to lock horns with Umpire Billy Evans.

And speaking of umpires, the game was crowded with close decisions, especially at first base, where Westervelt held sway. He called several which didn't suit the liking of the Yanks or Red Sox and the general disapproval was expressed in no silver terms.

RILEY'S COLUMN

* * *

BASEBALL followers rarely see a gamer fight than Kling's men put up against the Giants. They had all the worst of the decisions. And they took them meekly. A year ago Patsy Donovan lost control of the Red Sox because he "fell for" the worst of all the "breaks" in the game and he wouldn't stand for a fight. This year the Pilgrims seem to get the worst of the "breaks" in the field. Yesterday the crowd started to mob Brennan and Emslie and the Giants, but John M. Ward and a policeman stood them off.

* * *

JAKE STAHL seems to be no better fighter than Johnny Kling in that respect. Stahl took all the worst of it in Chicago, and as a result he lost the services of his shortstop-captain, Heinie Wagner.

* * *

RARIDEN bit a two-bagger inside the foul line yesterday and Umpire Brennan called it a foul. Rariden ran to second, but everybody seemed to take Brennan's decision as accurate. It was supposed in the press box that the ball struck the first base bleachers fence, which is outside the foul line, because the foul post is posted within the line. But two or three "fans" who sat in the bleachers measured the place where the ball hit and say that it was fair by two feet. Pilgrim players on the field, who could see clearer than the newspaper writers, made no complaint, as the umpire had granted that the ball was foul until "fans" with tape lines showed them otherwise.

* * *

KIRKE was caught off second by a close decision too. He doubled in the eighth, and started for third on Jackson's drive to Herzog. When he saw Herzy take the ball, he rushed back. The throw to Doyle was high, but Bob Emslie called Kirke out, and Jay took the decision meekly. It looked from the press box as if Kirke was entitled to the decision.

* * *

KIRKE, by the way, is the best distance hitter Kling has, but he is invariably weak in getting under way. He lays his bat [illegible] after he slams the ball and looks to see where the homeliide goes. He ought to put his head between his knees and run like—well run like a deer—like Campbell does, regardless of whether the ball strike into the pitcher's hands or goes over the fence.

* * *

"BIBE" MARQUARD has to be credited with his fifteenth straight victory yesterday, because the game was tied in the eighth, when "Babe" was relieved by Jackson was on third and Hooper on first at the time. "Doc" Miller was sent out to bat for O'Rourke at that stage of the game, but he lifted a Texas leaguer into Murray's paws.

* * *

JACKSON was called out on strikes in the fourth in an unusual play in the big leagues. Kirke was on first. Jackson's third strike was a bad wild pitch, and Kirke went all the way to third on it. "Hickory" was called out because, under the rules, the batter is out on a dropped third strike when first base is occupied and less than two are out.

* * *

IN scoring in the sixth Campbell made one of the most remarkable slides seen in a long time at South End park. He came in flat on his back right behind McDonald on Sweeney's two-base drive, and

BROWN-YALE BATTLE TODAY

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 20.—The Yale team, fresh after its two straight victories over Harvard, takes the field against Brown at the Camp street grounds today, confident of her ability to repeat the triumph scored at New Haven in the first meeting.

Brown will go into the battle with something more than a mere win as the goal, for upon her showing in this contest will depend to a great extent the position in the intercollegiate ranking list.

The Brown boys had a good workout yesterday in the contest with the Alumni, and despite the festivities attendant upon the Class Day and Commencement celebrations are in fine shape for what promises to be one of the best battles of the season here.

The Elis played poor ball in the closing contest of the series with Princeton, but came back strong against the Crimson and should be at top form today.

Joe Sourdman, who pitched the hill men to victory at New Haven, is Coach Patter's first choice, although Warner is just spelling for a chance to tie a Blue scalp to his belt.

Brown's recent string of victories, which includes victories over Harvard, Amherst, Cornell and Holy Cross, has made the hill team a keen contender for the championship and a victory today will place the team on the top rung of the ladder to dispute possession with Princeton.

The teams will use practically the same lineups as those in the games played yesterday.

Murphy and Baldwin to Meet Again

Fight Fans Clamor for Return Bout

By JACK CONWAY.

ALEX McLEAN, the hustling manager of Matty Baldwin, believes that his protege should have been awarded the decision over Eddie Murphy of South Boston at the Pilgrim A. A. last night. When interviewed by the writer today McLean said:

"Matty put up a grand fight last night and should have been awarded the decision. He had the best of the mixing for the first nine rounds. Murphy did well in the last three rounds of the bout, but that was all.

"I was led to believe that Murphy is one of the cleverest men that ever pulled on a padded glove. But I failed to see his cleverness at the Arena. It is true that Matty stopped many of Baldwin's punches, but if my memory serves me right Matty also made als rival look like a novice on several occasions.

"I am willing to let Matty meet Murphy in a return bout on the same conditions as they fought last night. And if my courage ever again gets Murphy into a ring he will make him look like a pinged nickel. Murphy is a much over-rated boxer.

Hite! Here's what Hector McInnis had to say today:

"Murphy won by a wide margin. But I never object to a referee's decision. He is the one who decides which man is entitled to the verdict.

"I am anxious to match Murphy against Baldwin for a return bout. I am confident that Eddie is capable of knocking Baldwin cold in twelve rounds."

The battle at the Arena last night is the talk of the local boxing world today. Friends of both boys are claiming a victory for their favorite.

Baldwin put up a magnificent battle. The dapper Bunker Hill "Bearcat" fought like a champion from beginning to end. He was the aggressor in almost every round and was willing to mix things with his opponent. Matty scored some terrific body punches, which would have floored the majority of present-day lightweights. Eddie's skill was the only thing which saved him in the opening rounds of the battle.

The South Boston favorite did his best work in the last three rounds of the bout, when he came to the front with a rush, sending Baldwin's head and heels to Baldwin's jaw and wind time and again. Eddie knew that his rival had the best of the milling up to this point, and he went out to even things up. And he made good with a vengeance. If Murphy had not made such a wonderful finish, Referee Mc-Rit Flaherty would have been forced to declare Baldwin the winner, as he had outpointed his antagonist in the first nine rounds by a fairly large margin.

The men both weighed in at 133 pounds at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The weight gave Matty a big advantage. He is at his best at 133 pounds at 4 o'clock. Murphy, on the other hand, shines when weighing from 130 to 132 pounds. When he entered the ring he looked drawn and in the opening sessions of the bout was unable to rough things with the boy from Charlestown.

EDDIE had to do some tall hustling to in order to make weight and he was compelled to keep training right up to the last moment. This, of course, sapped his vitality. There were many "fans" who saw last night's encounter who are firm in the belief that Eddie would be able to lower the colors of Baldwin if the weight was 136 pounds at 3 o'clock.

Murphy did his best work at long range. He ripped the ring with the speed of a lamplamplight, and kept jabbing with his left for all he was worth. Eddie also used his brain garage to good advantage, and evaded many of Matty's wild rushes by clever side-stepping or ducking.

Murphy was carried off his feet by Baldwin's fierce onslaught, and retreated to the ropes. Matty hammered away with rights and lefts, while Murphy tried to keep "covered up."

Eddie appeared weak, and more than one "fan" remarked that he had "killed" himself by making weight. Baldwin had a big lead in this spasm.

NO matter how hard Murphy hit him, Baldwin was not in the least bit affected. He would merely lower his head and bore in like a regular little champion. Matty was peeved because Murphy had done so well in the third chapter, and went after him for keeps in the fourth and fifth rounds. He kept in close and hammered away at Murphy's body for all he was worth.

MURPHY did some swell fighting in the last three rounds of the bout and had a slight shade on Baldwin. He threw a lot of his science to the wind and went in and mixed things with his gallant opponent.

Eddie scored repeatedly with his left and stopped many of Baldwin's fierce rushes abruptly by sending his right mitt crashing against the Charlestown boy's jaw with the speed of a lightning bolt shot from the sky.

There were many exciting moments in these last three rounds of milling, as first one boxer and then the other gained an advantage. The posters from the rival camps made the rafters of the building ring with their cheers. The draw decision of Referee Flaherty was a popular one, though Baldwin had the best of the going in the majority of the rounds.

THE preliminaries were not any too good.

Gilbert Gallant gave an exhibition of bag punching for eight rounds. Young Jasper of the North End acted as the human punching bag.

Peck Lefavor won from Tommy Furey in one short round. Both men showed poorly, and although Lefavor is a mighty poor mixer, Furey is even worse than he is. Furey's seconds tossed up the sponge at the end of the second round, and in the mixup that followed Bob Lefavor, brother of Peck, had a brainstorm and took a couple of punches at Referee Maffitt Flaherty. In the days of pore Maffitt was some boxer himself, and he walloped Robert a couple of times for luck. After the smoke of battle had blown over Mr. Flaherty decided that Flaherty was the best man. The count was 5,001 to 1. Lefavor voted for himself.

Sandy Ferguson will undertake to [illegible] ette in a twelve round bout next week.

PILGRIMS FIGHT TO WIN TODAY

The Pilgrims put up a game battle, but went down to defeat before the Giants yesterday in a ten-inning struggle. Incidentally, Rube Marquard added the fifteenth victory to his string, for he was called in as a relief twirler and finished up the last two innings for the victors.

Kling is determined to reverse the tables today, and a hot game is on the card.

The Pilgrims played fast ball, and, fighting under a handicap of a three-run lead, came from behind in the seventh and eighth, and in the latter inning drove Ames to the stable, forcing McGraw to send Marquard to the mound to avert a defeat.

Houser was on second with two out, after having driven in Jackson with the tying run with a single to left, and advancing on the throw to the plate. Two were out and Kling sent Miller to bat for O'Rourke, but Doc's best was a weak fly to Becker.

Boston was easy for Marquard in the ninth. Hess fanning and Rariden and McDonald hitting weakly to the outfield.

The Giants sewed it up in the tenth. With one out, Becker singled over second, and tallied when Herzog clouted a fast linshoot to the new board fence in left.

PILGRIMS TRY OUT ANOTHER TWIRLER

Frank Harrington, the former Wakefield Bligh and Boston College pitcher, is being tried out with the Pilgrims. This is the second local pitcher to get a try-out. Andy Owens of Roxbury being the other.

"Huh! Six thirty? All right, I'll get up in a moment. Turn on my bath in there, will you."

"Dear, could you get this in your trunk?"

Delia had breakfast ready at half past seven. Helen went to the table, poured Warren's coffee and then rose.

"Dear, I don't want a bite for breakfast and there's some things I must"—

Are You Ready?

"Now sit down there and eat some thing. [illegible] Yours packed around here half the night and now you [illegible]

And Helen was forced to come back and gulp down some coffee and toast. But in a moment she was up again, putting the last few toilet things in her hand bag.

"Trunk's all [illegible] remember appearing at the door of her room a few minutes later.

"Yes, dear, in just a second," fluttering anxiously over the tray to be sure that everything was in and securely packed.

"There," as he locked her valise and closed and locked the trunk, "you'd never have it [illegible] Now there's your key" holding it to her. "See that you don't lose it. Bag ready?" turning to look that [illegible] "Now, dear, not quite. I'll have it ready in a minute."

"Well, you'll have to get a move on pronto. It's ten minutes after eight now. You can't leave everything till the last [illegible] end."

In spite of Helen's efforts to get every thing ready in time, the last few moments [illegible] and the [illegible] that something had been overlooked.

Warren had already tagged the baggage with the "First Cabin Wanted on the Voyage" tags, stranged his cane with the [illegible] umbrella, rolled their raincoats in the shawl strap with the steamer rugs, and now stood waiting impatiently, his watch open in his hand.

Helen was darting anxiously from one room to another, trying to think of some thing she had forgotten nothing, all the time giving repeated directions to Delia about closing the windows and doors early. To Delia, after giving the apartment a thorough cleansing, was to go to her sister's for the six days Warren would be away.

"There's the cab now," announced Warren as the telephone rang.

With trembling, hurried fingers Helen tied on her veil while the elevator boy took down the luggage.

"Come on!" shouted Warren from the hall, and me wanted all time to elapse [illegible] there was still curling back directions to Delia.

Warren [illegible] directions to the driver, as he bundled Helen into the cab, jumped in after her and slammed the door. Helen leaned back, her heart fluttering with excitement and her mind in a whirl, trying to think if there was anything she had forgotten or had failed to tell Delia.

Warren after settling the suit case, bag, steamer rug and umbrella on the seat opposite, gloated at the watch and leaned back with an air of relief.

"Well, we're off. Then noticing Helen's anxious expression, "What's the matter with you?"

"Nothing, dear, I—I was only wondering if I put in my overshoes."

"For heaven's sake, don't begin now to think of the things you've left. You were ordering around there all night—ought to have gotten things in."

[illegible] Helen [illegible] the window in absent mind [illegible] cab rumbled noisily through the quiet street of the early morning. Suddenly she made a little start of dismay.

"Well, what is it now?" cried Warren with good humored contempt.

"Oh, dear," I didn't bring the shoers' I had them in my handbag, but took them out to cut that cord—and forgot to put them back. I must have left them on the bureau."

"What if you did? Can get scissors in London, can't you?"

"Yes, but we'll need them on the steamer."

"Love, you are too limit! Here you've been wild about going, and now that we're really off—you're not thinking about the trip, but of some fool thing you've left behind"

No [illegible] I'll tell you why. I get so many [illegible] from [illegible] that I've learned to do my hair entirely by feeling. I know exactly how it looks by the way it feels, and I've found that I can do it much more quickly and more satisfactorily than when I depended on my eyes."

This girl's hair was certainly beautiful, and I could [illegible] that she had learned to do it well.

PART I.—(Continued.)

Copyright, 1905, by Edward J. Clode.

"MAYBE, but why should 'e come pokin' round 'ere pryin' into your little affairs-deecur?"

"My what?"

"Sorry, sir, but that's what a French maid I once knew called 'em. Flirtations, sir; mashes."

"Smith, have you been drinking?"

"Me, sir?"

"Well, explain yourself. I never flirted with a woman in my life."

"That's what I told 'im, sir. 'My master's a regular saint,' says I, 'a sort of middle-aged ankyrite.' But Mr. White 'e wouldn't 'ave it at no price. 'Come now, Smith,' says 'e, 'your guv'nor's pretty deep. 'E's a toff, 'e is, an' knows lots of lydies—titled lydies.' 'Very like,' says I, 'but 'e doesn't mash 'em.' 'Then what price that lydy who called for 'im in a keb afore 'e went away? An' who's 'e goue to Monte Carlo with?' This was durin' your absence, sir."

"Go on, Smith. Anything else?"

"Well, sir, that rather flung me out of my stride, as the sayin' is, as I 'ad seen the lydy in question. An' Mr. White, 'as a nasty way of putting you on your oath, so to speak. But I never owned up."

Claude laughed.

"Excellent. Mr. White has a keen nose for false scents. I have already told him to let my affairs alone. He means no harm."

But the reference to a "lydy in a keb" had suggested an immediate plan of action to the barrister. He would call to see Mrs. Hillmer. He wrote a note asking her if he might come to tea that afternoon, and sent it by a boy messenger.

In return he received this answer.

"Mrs. Hillmer will be at home at 4 o'clock if Mr. Bruce cares to call then."

"Whew!" he whistled. "What's in the wind there? This is an uncommonly stiff invitation. That rascal White has upset her, I'll be bound. I must choke him off somehow. Suppose he were to find that damaged bracket! He would have Mensmore under trial at the Old Bailey in double quick time. After I leave Mrs. Hillmer I must visit No. 12 again and carry off that pair of brackets before White discovers them, as he will haunt the place in future."

Bruce had a set of skeleton keys in his possession.

They were in his pocket when he approached Raleigh Mansions at the appointed hour.

The same trim maid opened the door for him and ushered him into the drawing-room. On the occasion of his first visit he was taken to the dining room. It was a small matter, but Bruce paid heed to such.

Mrs. Hillmer appeared, very stately and undemonstrative. She greeted him coldly, seated herself at a distance, and said, in a cold, well controlled voice:

"I did not expect the honor of another visit from you, Mr. Bruce."

"Why not?"

Mrs. Hillmer Is Distant

There was a fight brewing, and he would let the enemy open fire. The glitter in her eyes showed that the batteries were ready to be unmasked. He was not mistaken.

"Why not? Because I believed you to be a gentleman. Once you had stooped to sending your myrmidons to pester me I imagined that you would keep yourself in the background."

There was an indignant ring to her words as she concluded. When a woman is angry her own speech nets as a trumpet call and fires her blood. Mrs. Hillmer began, as she intended, in icy disdain, she ended in tremulous anger.

"You allude to Mr. White?" said the barrister, looking steadily at her.

"Yes, that is the man. Some hireling from Scotland Yard. How could you so meanly induce my confidence at our first meeting? I have never been so deceived in a man in my life, and I have had a surfeit of bitter experience already."

"Brother and sister alike. They have led queer lives," mused Bruce. Aloud he said:

"Your experience, Mrs. Hillmer, should at least lead you not to condemn any one unheard. May I explain that which is to you incomprehensible at this moment?—to fathom your real intent? Presumably, justly so, I admit."

"Explanations! I am a child in the hands of such as you. How can I hope for like sensible people. Compose yourself, order in some tea, and after an interlude I will tell you all about it. Candor is an indispensable element of confidence."

Mrs. Hillmer rose, made an effort to choke back her agitation, went out, and called to the maid for tea. She returned in a few moments. When they were alone Bruce said, with a smile:

"A little poudre de riz is an excellent corrective for signs of grief."

The lady blushed, and there was a perceptible return to her former pleasant manner.

"You are incorrigible, I fear," she cried. "Not a bit impressionable, rather. Now, I am going to startle you considerably, so be prepared. And do not jump at conclusions. Though startling, my news is far alarming. All may yet end well."

Mrs. Hillmer was manifestly anxious, but she promised to try to understand.

MRS. HILLMER BREAKS DOWN

(Posed by Blanche Ring and William P. Carleton, of "The Wall Street Girl" Company.)

IN HER DESPAIR SHE ADOPTED A WOMAN'S CHIEF RESOURCE—HER EYES FILLED WITH TEARS

"I am not here to apologize, Mrs. Hillmer."

"What then, pray?"

"To plead with you. For Heaven's sake do not distrust me. If my ruin those whom you hold dear. Listen to me first, and try to believe me afterward."

He was so thoroughly in earnest, so impressive in manner, that she did not know what to make of him. In her despair she adopted a woman's chief resource—her eyes filled with tears.

But he anticipated her.

"What then, pray?"

"To plead with you. For Heaven's sake do not distrust me. If my ruin those whom you hold dear. Listen to me first, and try to believe me afterward."

He was so thoroughly in earnest, so impressive in manner, that she did not know what to make of him. In her despair she adopted a woman's chief resource—her eyes filled with tears.

But he anticipated her.

"Now, Mrs. Hillmer," he cried, "let us be like sensible people. Compose yourself, order in some tea, and after an interlude I will tell you all about it. Candor is an indispensable element of confidence."

Mrs. Hillmer rose, made an effort to choke back her agitation, went out, and called to the maid for tea. She returned in a few moments. When they were alone Bruce said, with a smile:

The lady blushed, and there was a perceptible return to her former pleasant manner.

"You are incorrigible, I fear," she cried. "Not a bit impressionable, rather. Now, I am going to startle you considerably, so be prepared. And do not jump at conclusions. Though startling, my news is far alarming. All may yet end well."

Mrs. Hillmer was manifestly anxious, but she promised to try to understand him fully before she formed any judgment.

Startling News

"Then," said he, "I can clear the air a good deal by a simple statement. Mr. White is no agent of mine, and I have seen your brother, Albert Mensmore, at Monte Carlo."

Mrs. Hillmer gave a little gasp of surprise. "You have seen Bertie?"

"Yes, your brother, is he not?"

"My half-brother, to be exact. My father was married twice. I—I am the elder of the two by four years."

Apart from the compliment, you do not look it. But what can explain the total absence of likeness between you?"

Possibly. People said we each resembled our mother. And Bertie, you know, has led a somewhat adventurous career. He roughed it a good deal in America. But what has all this got to do with detectives, and recent inquiries, and that sort of thing?"

"Much. The last time we met I told you that your brother was mixed up in some little affair with a lady."

Mrs. Hillmer laughed, a trifle constrainedly. "If you knew Bertie as well as I do, you would not harbor suspicions concerning him. He never had a love affair in his life. Indeed, he is something of a woman hater."

"No doubt he was. But he has changed his opinions. He is in love, and is engaged to be married to a very charming girl. Thus far, his beliefs and his good fortune have pulled against each other."

"Bertie engaged! Bertie married! Good gracious! Who is she? And how can he support a wife? He is poor, and in debt, and he won't even let me help him."

"I have stated the facts, nevertheless. The lady is the daughter of Sir William Brenton, and they are now yachting with a large party in the Mediterranean."

"And her people against the match? Is that why this Scotland Yard man"

"No. Monsmore is on board Sir William's yacht. But there is another subject missing from her home for nearly three months, who is believed to be dead murdered, the police say—and with whom your brother, was in some inexplicable way associated."

"Do you dare to say that Bertie killed her?" Mrs. Hillmer's color rose and her eyes flashed fire again.

"They say nothing. They are simply doing their duty in trying to discover the truth. And you may take it from me, as an undoubted fact, that the last place Miss Ivy visited before her death was one of the flats in those mansions. All pointed indications point to your brother's flat. Now, I pray you, be calm, and try to help me, for I have acted in this matter as your brother's friend. At this very moment I am concealing his identity and his whereabouts from the police, who are searching for him under the assumed name of Corbett. If he is guilty of this crime then I must hand him over to Justice. But the murdered woman was a dear and good friend of mine. If he is innocent, as, indeed, I believe him to be, I will strive to help him and save his good name from the terrible odium of being arrested on such an odious charge."

Another Surprise.

During this recital Mrs. Hillmer became deathly pale. Her agitation was the greater because she so forcibly controlled herself. But she could not remain seated. She sprang to the window and looked out in the vain effort to seek inspiration from the gathering gloom of the street. Then she turned and spoke very slowly.

"I think I understand. I must have fallen on you, Mr. Bruce. Who—was—the lady?"

To Be Continued To-morrow.

Madam, Avoid Such Hands!

Women who wash clothes used to have such terribly rough, wrinkled, red, coarse hands!

This was before they learned about Welcome Soap and how easily and safely it washes even the daintiest fabrics.

—How it whitens the clothes instead of destroying them.

For more Borax is used in Welcome in one year than in all other soaps manufactured in New England in five years! This is merely one reason why you should buy a trial cake of Welcome. One reason why twice as much Welcome is sold as any other.

And how much easier your washing is done. How much longer your clothes last. A big cake 5c. (27)

BACKACHE NOT A DISEASE

But a Symptom, a Danger Signal Which Every Woman Should Heed.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache and don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Read about Mrs. Woodall's experience.

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since. I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

Every woman ought to have Lydia E. Pinkham's 80-Page Text Book. It is not a book for general distribution, as it is too expensive. It is free and only obtainable by mail. Write for it today. Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

SHUMAN CORNER, BOSTON

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

Politics Has the Call Over Trading In Stock Markets

By W. H. ROSS.

STATE STREET, June 20.—Midday—The Boston market opened irregular as to prices and trading was fairly active. Among the coppers to make gains during the morning were Isle Royale, Ray Consolidated, Mohawk, up one point, and Superior Copper, up two. There were recessions for Indiana, Amalgamated, Old Colony and Butte & Superior.

Outside of the copper list, Pond Creek, American Pneumatic preferred and American Zinc all sold lower.

There appears to be a disposition, even in foreign markets dealing in American securities, to avoid speculation of consequence until the Chicago convention situation has definitely shaped itself. Copper stocks did not reflect to any extent the steady gain in strength of the metal market.

N. Y. Traders in Waiting Mood.

Traders in New York were in a waiting mood today and not disposed to make any moves until the Chicago political situation had taken a more definite aspect. The market was irregular as well as exceedingly dull at the opening. The price changes were fractional in most instances. Practically all the transactions had the professional tinge. Union Pacific reacted ¼ from the point which closed at 168⅜. Steel Common, after touching Wednesday's final, receded ⅛. Northern Pacific, Great Northern preferred and Rapid Transit lost fractions. Canadian Pacific was ⅜ off and Lehigh Valley's decline reached ⅝. Reading opened ⅜ higher, but reacted.

The curb opened steady.

A firm tone prevailed in Americans and in Canadian Pacific in London on small transactions. English traders, taking their cue from Wall Street, are waiting for political developments.

Copper Metal and Mining.

Copper producers and selling agencies have put the price of the metal at 17¼ cents a pound, and it is believed that within twenty-four hours considerable has been sold above 17¼ cents. Five per cent selling price is for copper for exportation. The metal can be bought for domestic delivery slightly under that figure, it is said. But the price for all sold below 17¼ cents is expected to go higher. Buying has been resumed on a heavy scale, according to all reports, and it is believed that the strike at the Perth Amboy refinery will decrease the output for June and July materially below the expected total for that month. Stocks are so low that any reduction in output is likely to have some effect upon market prices.

Thompson, Towle & Co. say: "Anyone who has just been misinformed at the Superior Copper property, Lake Superior, that it is not better showing of ore at Lake Superior than that of the Calumet & Hecla property, or about 12 per cent, has been caught from the twelfth to the eighteenth inclusive

Can Women Lead Men in Politics?

One Glance at the Chicago Lady With the Blue Bonnet Would Have Answered That Question for You.

CHICAGO, June 20.—A young woman with a blue hat and a good figure taught the world something in the convention here yesterday. She proved that women have a faculty for LEADERSHIP and for inspiring enthusiasm that men have not.

She made it clear that the things done by Joan of Arc for the French against England, and the things done by Germanic wives for their tribes against Rome can be done now by a Chicago lady, dressed in a blue hat, and free from bashfulness.

The time had come for something to happen at the convention.

Proceedings had been dull. Three hours of solemn speech-making had tired everybody.

Hadley for Roosevelt and Watson for Taft stood together at the same moment in consultation—when suddenly something started.

How it happened, WHY it happened, no one knows now.

It probably started for no reason in particular and accidentally.

Some of the men cheered Hadley. Others cheered Roosevelt, represented by Hadley. A smaller number cheered Taft, in the spirit of the stranger at the camp meeting, who, when no one else had responded to the request "to stand up for Jesus," stood up, remarking that he was not religious, but would stand up for any one needing friends in such a cold crowd as that.

The cheering and yelling swelled and grew and became a tempest. But it would soon have died out had not the WOMAN LEADER appeared. She was there in the gallery, as she has been everywhere in history, and as she is everywhere today, waiting for something to call her out.

She stood up, waving a Roosevelt banner. Then she waved her arms and head AND the banner. Then she shook her fist at imaginary tyrants and pointed dramatically to Roosevelt's beautiful face as Mrs. Gracchus might have pointed to her boy's.

Every time she did a new thing the men on the floor yelled louder and louder.

She came down to the floor among the delegates, a California man marching ahead of her with the golden bear, California's emblem. She paraded the big hall, delegates yelling, screeching and howling, falling in line behind her—just as the French fighters fell in behind Joan at Orleans.

When she had paraded enough she climbed up on the sacred speaker's platform, waved her fists, waved Roosevelt's portrait, drove the howling crowd into a frenzy of excitement and delight.

No one dared or tried to pull her down. When she was tired of bossing and leading the great Republican Convention and making it foolish she climbed up to her seat in the gallery again, waved her gold mesh bag a few times to say, "I'm still boss," and then dropped her leadership.

SHE did not know what it was all about. Those that yelled and screamed as she took possession of the convention did not know what it was about. But without any trouble this one good-looking young woman in a blue hat made all the thousands in the crowd follow her, think of HER, and forget their real business. It was Circe again, with yelling monkeys instead of swine to prove her power.

Suppose the woman had had a REAL serious object and suppose her powers of leadership had been exercised upon earnest men intent upon achieving some great purpose.

Every man among her followers would have been worth five ordinary men, as Joan's Frenchmen were each worth five English fighters that had no woman to lead them.

Women are the world's natural leaders, and the natural leaders of men. Some half-baked, half-bred men deny this—because they are only half developed. They are ashamed to follow the lead of what is best in our race, and little boys are ashamed to follow their own good impulses.

Woman represents goodness of the race, and men are never as hard to conquer as when they are following goodness. The savage people were led and inspired by their seeresses, their sybils, and primitive and savage as their women leaders were they were far above the men that followed them.

Civilized men of the future will have to follow great women leaders, and as every decent home has a woman for its centre, the leader and its inspiration, so every decent nation—the bigger home—will have a woman and many women to lead and inspire.

Men to work and women to point the way and reward the workers will be the motto of civilization. Young women and old women—age will make no difference—will be the leaders and the inspiration of the real man in a real civilization.

And this you believe when you see among savages of today, in a convention of politicians, not far above cannibals in patriotism or intelligence, women leading and inspiring as no man could have led.

Bwana Tumbo on horseback could hardly have created more excitement than that woman with the blue hat. And no one had ever seen her before. What might not such a woman as Jane Addams do in leadership, with plans mapped out, character known and loved?

Woman will be the power in politics and statesmanship when men are civilized, for woman represents intuition and goodness, and goodness represented by woman will lead the world one day.

Mystery of the Sphinx

THE WORLD

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1912, by the National News Association

WITH noiseless steps good goes its way:
The earth shakes under evil's tread.
We hear the uproar, and 'tis said,
The world grows wicked every day.

It is not true. With quiet feet,
In silence, Virtue sows her seeds;
While Sin goes shouting 'out his deeds,
And echoes listen and repeat.

But surely as the old world moves,
And circles round the shining sun,
So surely does God's purpose run,
And all the human race improves.

Despite bold evil's noise and stir,
Truth's golden harvests ripen fast;
The present far outshines the Past
Men's thoughts are higher than they were.

Who runs may read this truth, I say;
Sin travels in a rumbling car,
While Virtue soars on like a star—
The world grows better every day.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

THANKS FOR FINDING BROTHER

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear sir—I desire to thank you for the publication of my letter. It was printed June 13, and by June 15 I had discovered a brother and had had a letter from him.

I am very grateful to your paper for its quick results obtained. I shall probably hear from other members of my family also as a result.

Once more I desire to thank your paper for its great work, but I knew it was equal to the task.

PRAISES EDITORIALS.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear sir—I want to express my mind on your editorial on Wilbur Wright. I think it is the best of the many great editorials published in the Boston AMERICAN. I would like to see more on the same subject and I think it safe to say that there are thousands of people in New England who are mind free enough to enjoy such editorials.

I think such editorials are the greatest of all means for mind liberation. The economic means (one cent per day) place it in the hands of every one whose mind is starving for greater freedom.

The Education of the Voter

No. 2—The Initiative and the Referendum

By THOMAS TAPPER

I.

IT is important for the citizens of a republic to know something about its government. If you help to elect those who make laws, you are in part responsible for the result.

Our form of government, that of a republic, recognizes the people themselves as the source of power. Reading the daily paper of late you have come upon a number of new words which spring out of the political situation of the day. These words are Initiative, Referendum, Preferential Primary, The Recall, and the like. What do they all mean?

Keep in mind the fact that the Federal Constitution does not essentially take precedence over State Constitution. In fact, one supplements the other. Also, keep it in mind that a Constitution is always the result of progressive history. This fact, progressive history, made it necessary to add fifteen amendments to the Constitution of the United States. There is one further thing to remember. History is progressing now, in 1912, and it will keep on progressing, or misfortune will swallow us up.

II.

THE words Initiative and Referendum do not occur in the Federal Constitution. But in Article I. of the Amendments it is stated that Congress shall make no law prohibiting the right of the people to petition the government for a redress of grievances. It is important to remember this petitioning right of the people.

In politics, the words initiative and Referendum are frequently used together. The Referendum is nothing new, as we shall see. The word initiative in this connection refers to the right of the people, of you as an individual voter, to initiate, or start, or originate legislation. Any petition on the part of the people—you are one of them—for the passing of a desirable law is the Initiative. The incorporation of this principle into practice has been brought about in South Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska and California.

Local application of the initiative has long been known. When the people of a town frame a petition to open up a new street and present it with sufficient signatures to the town fathers they have availed of this privilege. Often a governing body refers a question to the people. This is the Referendum. The whole gist of the matter has been succinctly put by Dr. Oberholzer in his treatise on the Referendum.

Shall the law, he says, which has been passed by the State Legislature, apply to a particular locality? The people will decide by the Referendum.

Where shall the Referendum be taken? The people will decide by the Initiative.

The REFERENDUM results when laws are prepared by the Legislature and are submitted to the people. The INITIATIVE results when laws are prepared by the people and submitted to the Legislature.

III.

THE Initiative in respect to local conditions is frequently adopted. When in South Dakota as many as five per cent. of those who voted for Governor in the previous election sign a petition they establish a right to be heard on any question of State laws.

The required number of signatures to the petition is not uniform in the States and municipalities in which the Initiative is operative. In the city of San Francisco fifteen per cent. of the votes cast at the last election are required; in the State of California fifty per cent; in Iowa, twenty-five per cent., and in Nebraska fifteen per cent.

To submit laws to the vote of the people is a live and important question. It is not a new principle in American politics in local application. The education of the voter should convince him whether the Initiative is a principle that is capable of expansion from a narrow to a broad application. Are the people, as a rule, fitted to give judgment on legislative measures? To answer the question, ask yourself:

Am I so careful a student of political questions that my opinion is intelligently formed on any proposed measure of legislation?

Do I actually know anything about it?

Do I keep in mind when I vote THE ONE GREAT MATTER THAT AFFECTS ME DIRECTLY—the prosperity of the country?

Do I vote with a sane point of view as to property protection, to the purpose of taxation, and so on?

Between the man who thinks upon the right of the franchise in this way and the man who criminally discusses of his vote for a price stretches the whole range of voting intelligence.

All the conditions that may surround us as a people depend on whether the voter is intelligent and responsible. Let him be a reformer in the truest sense of the word.

Let him also remember that many writers and papers are inclined to regard the reformer as working heaven and earth in his own interest.

This is the right and proper thing to do if, at the same time, his interest is the greatest good to the greatest number.
